

5

mation as original page format pages, the display system displaying information on a surface external to the mobile device, the optical projector display system being controlled by the display controller, the optical projector display system further comprising:

a light source for projecting light whereby an image of the original page format information is projected on the external surface.

2. The mobile device of claim 1 further comprising a switch for activating one or both of the built-in display and the optical projector display system. 10

3. The mobile device of claim 1, wherein the mobile device comprises a cellular telephone.

6

4. The mobile device of claim 1, wherein the optical projector display system is operable to provide a color image.

5. The mobile device of claim 1, further comprising a light transmissive display screen which operates to provide the original page format information and which is positioned in the vicinity of the light source such that the light source projects light through the light transmissive display screen to thereby project an image of the original page format information provided on the light transmissive display screen onto the external surface for viewing.

* * * * *